An Interesting Letter From Dr.

Quarles.

[Continued from last week.] I must tell you something about the closing exercises of the Washington and Lee University and of the Virginia Military Institute. Counting my son, Jimmy, there were seven Missouri boys at the University this year. Fire week that the republican papers of discuss a point with the least degree of fairness and civility. They fly at once to the most abrupt accusations of perfidy and venality. In keeping with this policy is the statement of the Intelligencer last week that the republican papers of this boys at the University this year. Five of them were from Kansas City, and were nice young men. One was the son of Gen. Jno. W. Reid, and distinguished bimself by winning the this statement of the Intelligencer last week that the republican papers of this county have 'abdicated to the corporations.' We mean to be moderate in our language at all times, but must say that this statement so far as we are conson of Gen. Jno. W. Reid, and distinguished himself by winning the Santini medal, given by a New Orleans gentleman to the best essayist of the year. Another was the son of Mr. E. L. Martin, who was selected by a popular vote of the students as president of their flual ball, a high social honor. A third was Mr. E. G. Vaughan, the son of another old and prominent the son of another old and prominent citizen of the western metropolis, who was made the coxswain of the Albert was made the coxswain of the Albert Sidney boat crew. A fourth was Bixby Willis, the son of the leading hardware merchant, who is quite a bright young man and hard student, the result of which is seen in his being distinguished in all of his classes. The youngest was Churchill White, the grandson of the well known banker, an intelligent and promising boy. Jimmy Q, successfully completed two of his four studies, and failed of the people of Lexington to hear that Jimmy Chambers was the most distinguished "rat" of the University. (Bat is the nickname for a freshman). Each class, at the end of the year, has three divisions: first and lowes! those who fail; it at times to refrain from saying periods and progression can long pass the archive it is used upon truth current unless it is based upon truth the current unless it is based upon truth the sand reason. Our contemporary in the current unless it is based upon truth the mode of further purantee as to their sufficient heads of the swelf for th ions: first and lowest, those who fail; second, those who pass without mark-ed credit, and are called proficient; third, those who pass with honor, and are known as distinguished. Jimmy Chamsired effective legislation to control the bers was not only distinguished in corporations, and that which declared all his classes, but was first in three and second in the fourth of them. He urged the corporations' specious and all his classes, but was first in three and second in the fourth of them. He was entitled to any one of the three scholarships, but was awarded that of mathematics, which is worth seventy dollars to him. He was named as worthy of the F. O. French scholarship, which yields three hundred dollars a year. The baccalaureate sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Tudor, well known in St. Louis, and was eloquent, original, vigorous. The orator's medal was won by Mr. T. G. Hailey, of Idaho. The intermediate medal for oratory in the Graham-Lee society was awarded to Mr. J. H. Smith, of Oregon. The editor's medal, for the best short essay published in the Collegian, went to Mr. J. M. Garband, and oppose the interests of the people of Lafayette

There was intense interest in the race. As I have already said, Mr. Vaughan, a Missourian, was coxswain of the Albert Sidney, and Jimmy, my son, was portstroke. For these reasons, and because it was the Albert Sidney's last chance for the cup. I was exceed-Lee, after a noble race. The Bourbons in the republican party

There were four Missouri boys at the Virginia Military Institute the past year. None of them, however, were announced as distinguished by the superintendent at the commencement. superintendent at the commencement yesterday. The two from Marshall were very nice boys, and were advanced to sergeantships for the coming year. The Institute has had a prosperous term, and is, donotless, next to West Point, the leading military school of the country. I was honored with an invitation to their alumni bancers, an elegant affair, when our quet, an elegant affair, when our University was not only toasted but was given three cheers. It was my lot to respond to the toast. A reception to the board of visitors yesterday afternoon, at the hospitable home Gen. Smith, was quite an agreeabl occasion. I there met Capt. J. D. Ward, of the W. M. A., who towered like a very Saul over the heads of com mon men. I tound him a pleasan gentleman, and wished for a longe time to talk to him. You may t know that he is one of the distinguish ed graduates of the Institute, having received the second honor of his class It is quite au interesting fact about this military school, that it was founded to invitation to take a chair in Westmins ter College. Thirteen months ago, I should have accepted it with great deasure. To-day, I would do so, did I heed the promptings of my heart. I should love to spend the rest of my life in Missouri; and of all positions in Missouri, I regard the professorship of metaphysics in Westminster as the most desirable. For many reasons I have been compelled to de-cline it. Since I have come to Virginia, my Florida investment has proved a my Florida investment has proved a disastrous failure, and I have thus sunk the most of the little that I had.
